The Nominations and Adoption of a Platform at Columbus This Afternoon.

The Platform Endorses Coxey's Pet, Favors Lots of Any Kind of Money,-Abolishment of National Banks, Reduction of Salaries, Slaps Both Old Parties and Swipes Around Generally.

By Telegraph to THE TIMES.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 2.—The whole forenoon today in the Populist state convention was spent in tearing to pieces the platform reported last night by the committee on resolutions.

At the afternoon session Jacob Coxey, of Massillon, was nominated for goveror. A platform was finally adopted which reaffirmed the Omaha platform; Coxey's non-interest good roads bills; issuing enough of legal tender paper; free and unlimited coinage; nationalization of public monopolies. Denounces interest-bearing bonds; denounces process of the Debs case; subversive rights of trial by jury. Favors law against the payment of any debt in gold only; demands immediate abolishment of national banks; favors a per diem service pension bill. As to state affairs, the platform demands the referendum plan to reduce salaries; tax reform; remulation coal screens; eight hours a day. Opposes fusion with the old parties. Favors election of all officers, state and national, by a direct vote of the people; state control of the liquor traffic and endorses union labels.

NO STRIKE.

A Settlement Which Will Avert It Reached at Pittsburg.

Miners Granted Advance Asked, to Go Into Effect October 1st, After Pending Contracts Are Filled—Miners of Four States May Breathe Easier.

By Telegraph to THE TIMES.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—The miners and operators have been meeting all day, but no definite settlement was reached at the forenoon session, but it is announced that there will be no strike. Details of the compromise will be perfected this afternoon when the conditions will be officially announced.

Later—The great coal miners strike has been averted. The miners will be granted the advance demanded provided they consent to wait until October. A meeting of the coal operators was held this morning and their committee empowered to act at the conference this afternoon. The operators agreed to grant the miners demands in full October first, and promised to see that the rates of 61 and 69 cents were made uniform in this district. They claimed that the present lake contracts would have to be filled at existing rates, but after they had closed all contracts would be made at the new price. The operators committee agreed to meet the miners officials at 1:30. At the conclusion of the conference the miners will report to the convention. It is thought the miners will accept the terms offered by the operators and continue work.

BABIES GO FREE

Passengers on a street car yesterday afternoon were greatly amused by the efforts of a conductor named Hirsh to collect fares from two ladies for their babies. The ladies claimed that it was not the custom to charge small babies while the conductor insisted that it was. The ladies said they wouldn't pay and the conductor said they should and threatened that if the money was not forthcoming instantly to take the babies away from the women and put them off. This was met by a counter-threat to scratch the conductor's eyes out if he so much as laid hands on "them babies." That ended the difficulty. The babies rode free.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Krick Entertain in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Krick, of Portsmouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Krick, of North Mulberry street, gave a delightful reception last night, in honor of their son and daughter-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Adam Krick, who were married in Portsmouth, day before yesterday.

The bridal party arrived from Portsmouth yesterday at noon. At the reception last night, there were seventy-five guests present. The evening was spent in dancing, the music being furnished by a mandolin orchestra composed of Messrs. Louis Fuchs, George and Charley Krick and Charles and Andrew Ebenhack. A number preferred cards to the mazy waltz, and pleasantly passed the time away with euchre and high five. An elegant supper was served at nine o'clock. The guests did not leave for their homes till one o'clock this morning.

Fine Apples Abundant.

Harrisonville leads in fine apples this season and the crop will be abundant. Mr. John A. Will called at the TIMES office today and left some very fine specimens of a variety unknown to him, but of fine appearance and excellent flavor. Scioto county seems to be specially blessed by an excellent prospect for a bountiful crop of almost everything this year—much more so than in many localities.

DISCOURAGED.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—There was no important developments in the Holmes case Thursday morning. Patrick Quinlan arrived at the Central police station in charge of an officer early in the day, and was at once taken into Inspector Fitzpatrick's office, and examined in regard to the statements said to have been made by Holmes to the effect that Emiline Cigrand is still alive and in a convent. He refused to tell anything on this point if he knew anything. Inspector Fitzpatrick said Thursday morning he had nearly abandoned all hope of getting any information out of the Quinlans which would incriminate either them or Holmes. So far, although the department has worked very hard and faithfully, not enough evidence has been secured to make out any sort of a case or to warrant a request that Holmes be tried in Chicago. A number of papers and letters have still to be examined, and the digging is being continued at the Sixty-third street house, so that hope has not yet been abandoned.

AN OUTRAGE.

A Well Known Young Gentleman Held Up and Searched by an Officious Policeman Yesterday.

There was a queer little transaction on West Third street Thursday morning that has excited much comment, one of the principals, Chief Williamson of the fire department, being sharply criticised for his part. It seems that a woman who was attending market had been robbed of a small sum of money. She complained to Chief Williamson, who chanced to come along and that gentleman, who is invested with police powers, proceeded to investigate. As a result of that "investigation," he stopped Albert Maier, son of August Maier, on West Third street. Maier's protestations were of no avail and the official proceeded to go through his pockets right there on the street. Of course he found nothing except Maier's personal property. It does seem strange that young gentlemen cannot walk the streets of Portsmouth without being held up and searched by officious policemen or even the chief of the fire department. One would think from recent exhibitions of the fire department that the chief would have all he could do to look after it.

SUNDAY DRINKS

Got Three Prominent Saloonists Into Mayor's Court This Morning.

Fined $20 and Costs for Selling on Sunday—The Dunaway Domestic Differences Aired in Court—Several Minor Cases on the Docket.

An empty docket greeted His Honor, the Mayor, this morning, not one offender being apprehended during the night. The court was preparing to enjoy a rest from the labor of administering justice when the Rev. Elijah Dunaway burst upon the scene. He had a very thrilling narrative to unfold. His better half, from whom he has recently separated, and who is the defendent in a divorce suit filed by the reverend gentleman, has been giving him much trouble and annoyance. He says that in his suit for a divorce he asks for custody of their child to which the wife agreed. Last night she called and spirited the young one away, so his story ran, and he wanted her arrested. He left and returned later with the object of his wrath. She said that she went to see the child, and when she got ready to leave the little one cried for her to stay. The mayor put an end to their wrangling, but ordering them to leave and advised them to consult a lawyer with their mess.

The quiet that followed the Dunaway family incident was disturbed very shortly by the appearance of three saloonists, victims of Marshal Watkins' little Sunday crusade. It will be remembered that the marshal investigated back door entrances last Sunday and succeeded in locating several which were open and in use. He filed affidavits against three, W. E. Pendleton of the Gilt Edge garden; Richard Keer of the Stag and John Schuler of the Lodge, charging them with selling on Sunday. They pleaded guilty and were fined $20 and costs each, the latter amounting to $8.80 in each case. In all probabilities it will require lively hustling to get a drink in Portmouth next Sunday and those who anticipate a thirst would do well to lay in a supply.

The mysterious cutting affray of last Monday night has assumed a rather ridiculous aspect. Vint Faught the wounded man was ordered by his physician to stay in bed. Yesterday the marshal telephoned the physician to see if the sick man could come down and file a charge against Benj. Windel who confessed that he did the cutting. The physician called to see and was very much surprised to find Vint's bed empty and the wounded man gone. He had skipped, probably during the night. Windle was arraigned and fined $5.80 for disorderly conduct which will probably end the very peculiar case.

August De Lotelle was arrested last evening and fined $1.80 for disorderly conduct. He gave security for the amount and was released.

Jake Nelson who awaited the appearance of his wife to file a charge against him pleaded guilty to the charge of disorderly conduct and was fined $4 80 which he paid.

J. F. Stewart, alias Fletcher, from Kentucky precincts, became gay at the power house just before noon and flourished an ugly looking knife. He was arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct.

Wm. Bertram, of Kentucky, was arrested this afternoon for fast driving. He was driving up Second street on the double quick when the marshal and several policemen started after him. He was caught at the corner of Front and Chillicothe and locked up.

Jim Scott was brought in from the East End in the patrol this afternoon. He was slated for intoxication.

A BLUFFER BLUFFED.

Conductor "Stringer" Barnes Calls a Henley Wild Man Down and Throws Him Off the C. P. & V. Train.

Conductor "Stringer" Barnes, who had charge of the C. P. & V. special, which left the city last night at seven o'clock to accommodate people attending the fair, had a lively experience with a wild man from Henley. This Henley citizen had been indulging in some Portsmouth whiskey, and was jurt drunk enough to be fighting mad. He boldly announced his intention of running the train, and to emphasize his statements began abusing the passengers and raising a row generally. Barnes civily asked the fellow to be quiet, but he refused. "Stringer" then took hold of him and waltzed him out to the car door, his brakeman meanwhile signaling for the engineer to stop. When the train stopped the Henley man quieted down. He would be quiet he said. Barnes insisted on his getting off, finally throwing him off, and then signalled "go ahead." The fellow was put off near Camp McCulloch, a good four miles from home. If he got there he had to walk.

Runaway At the Fair Grounds.

A horse hitched to an empty buggy broke loose at the fair grounds yesterday and caused much excitement by starting on a bee-line through the crowd near the grand stand. It was headed off and then started for the gate at the north end of the grounds along the track. The buggy was overturned and the top torn off. The horse finally came to a stop by throwing itself and getting tangled up in the harness. It was uninjured by the runaway.

DESPITE the predictions of enemies of the county fair, it has proven a great success—a fact that is indeed gratifying to the association managers.

BEATRICE HARRADEN says she only realized $650 from "Ships that Pass in the Night." The book had a phenomenal sale in this country and Europe, but the publishers captured what money there was to be made out of it.

GOVERNOR CULBERTSON, of Texas, is determined that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight shall not come off in the Lone Star state, and is raking up old obsolete statutes bearing on the subject. We believe that a certain governor of Florida blustered and stormed about the Corbett-Mitchell fight and declared that it should not come off—but nevertheless Corbett whipped the little Englishman, and in Florida too. Those southern governors are great bluffers, and nobody is deceived by their blustering.

JOHN H. THOMAS, like Barkis, is quite willin' to take the Democratic nomination for governor, but is the Democratic party quite willin' to take John H? The party cannot afford to make a mistake this year, even to placate a few disgruntled kickers.

THE Gallipolis Journal has undertaken a bigger task than it imagines when it seeks to explain and defend Governor McKinley's junketing trips over the country. Even our Republican friends on the Gallipolis Tribune were disgusted and observed sarcastically:

The Journal has "no patience" with people who consider McKinley's appearances all over the country as "in the interest of his presidential candidacy, or as being in any sense political." Neither have we. Such a thing as the presidency never enters the governor's mind. He travels for philanthropic purposes alone. Nor is anything he does during his speech making in any sense political. The governor is not in politics. He is simply a pure-minded, innocent, truthful patriot who probably couldn't define the difference between the Democratic and Republican parties to save his life. As for the presidency, did he even dream of such an honor for himself, he would shrink abashed in modest timidity clear under the bed tick. No, no; Editor Chapman is right. The governor's travels are not political or in the interest of his presidential candidacy, any more than Editor Chapman's attendance at bean dinners, reunions and camp meetings when he wanted to be county treasurer were in the interests of his candidacy. Perish the thought! And thanks to the Journal for setting McKinley right before the people who thought he knew what he was about.

Politics as a Career.

In the recent transfer of power in England from the Liberals to the Unionists no one feature is more striking in contrast with American methods than the steadiness of political careers. It is Salisbury's third cabinet which succeeds Gladstone's fourth cabinet. To us, to whom the idea of a "third term" is odious, such continuity of power is almost incredible. In English politics, on the other hand, permanency of leadership is the test of successful leadership, and, whether in power or in opposition, the leaders hold their places, and grow and gain in authority.

In the new cabinet, for instance, there is not a man who has not been tried in official life and responsibility. Most of them have been in politics since their early manhood. Even the younger men, who begin their ministerial careers in subordinate positions, are what we would call political veterans. Such a thing as putting a new and untried man in a responsible cabinet position would not be thought of. The English can do these things because a statesman of eminent ability can generally find a constituency to send him to parliament. All Britain is the district of any member of parliament, and no Englishman of cabinet calibre need be relegated to private life by the peanut politics of his immediate locality.

It is hardly worth while emphasizing the contrast in this country. Here two successive and opposing "tidal waves" have swept from the face of politics nearly every prominent member of congress on both sides of the house. No one can argue that such a destruction of all the gains of political experience can be beneficial. Our politics cannot be better managed under a system which ends political careers just when they are most valuable. But the sentiment of local pride is strong enough to prevent our country from getting the benefit of any statesmanship that is not bounded by the district limits.—Harper's Weekly.

THE TRUE STORY

Col. Manning Gives an Account of the Indian Troubles.

He was in Command of the Squad That Arrested the Reds

For Illegal Elk Hunting in the Jackson Hole Country—The Prisoners Attempted to Escape, and the Guards Fired, Killing Six out of the Nine Bucks.

JACKSON'S HOLE, Wyo., Aug. 1, via Market Lake, Aug. 2.—Col. Manning came in Thursday from the mountains. His story is the first accurate one of the arrest and killing of the Indians, the cause of the trouble. He says:

"On June 7, information having been received that Indians were killing game in violation of the statutes of the state of Wyoming, a warrant was issued for the arrest of Shoshone and Bannock Indians identified as to name. Constable William Manning, with twelve deputies, went into the mountains to serve the warrants. He found one Indian named George and brought him into court. He was found guilty of violating the statutes referred to and was fined $15. One June 24, said Mr. Manning, a second warrant was issued. Constable Manning with two deputies proceeded to Fall River basin, Wyoming, to make arrests. At the head of Cache creek and Granite creek trail the officers located Indians hunting. There were seven in the party, and on the officers' approach the Indians got together and leveled their guns at the men. They then signaled for one man to come to them to parley. The warrant was read to them. On its reading they declared that they would hunt as much as they pleased. They said there was little law in Jackson's Hole, and that little they defied. They further say they would fight before they would submit to arrest. Being too heavy in numbers for the white men, no further attempts were made to arrest them. After this talk we watched the Indians and observed that they took nothing from the elks' carcasses but the hides and brains, leaving the rest to rot.

"The next information for illegal hunting was filed July 2, and a warrant was issued. Constable Manning, with 30 deputies, went to Gresvent river to serve it.

"We found," said Manning, taking up the story, "five lodges of Indians at the mouth of Rock creek. The camp was surprised in the morning and the Indians were arrested. Forty or fifty fresh elk hides were taken from the Indians. They were brought into court and six pleaded guilty and were fined $75 and costs each, the gross fine being about $1,400. While we were bringing in the prisoners we found we were followed by a rescuing party, but we eluded it. However, the Indians escaped in the night, the sentinel falling asleep.

"An information was filed July 10 and a warrant issued charging unidentified Indians with illegally killing game. Constable Manning, with twenty deputies, proceeded to Fall River basin, and there surprised a camp, and arrested ten Indians. One Indian got away, leaving nine bucks in our hands. We traveled about fifteen miles, being headed for Jackson's Hole. The bucks had been disarmed, and I was satisfied that they had no weapons whatever on their persons. There were 15 guards with the Indians, and as a precautionary measure I placed a guard in the single file column."

In spite of the fact of the unarmed condition of the Indians the men were not instructed not to shoot them. It was understood they were to shoot at them to keep them from escaping and so when all at once they darted, the men shot at them and killed six.

This is the story. Afterward came the Indian rumors and preparations for war but there was nothing really hostile.

TERRIBLE RAINSTORM.

The Vicinity of Denver, Col., Visited—Much Railroad Property Destroyed.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 2.—Another terrible rainstorm swept this region Thursday evening and all railroads continue to suffer great losses. An iron bridge over Hard Crabble creek on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, twenty miles west of Pueblo was swept away about the time the Atlantic express was due at that point. The Arkansas river has swollen to a raging torrent Thursday evening, and all travel on roads crossing it has been stopped. The Florence and Cripple Creek road has not been able to run trains for several days, and wires are down all along the line. In the city the storm again flooded everything. Cloudbursts at Morrison and Sadalia damaged much property.

The Indians Want Rations.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 2.—The people of Dubois are keeping a sharp lookout for the Indians who were encamped near Oregon Buttes Wednesday night. It was the talk among the Shoshones at Ladder Wednesday that they were starving and would rather die fighting the soldiers than by starvation. It is understood that an agreement exists between the Bannocks, Utes, Lehmis and Shoshones by which the government will be informed at the proper time that peace can be secured by issuing them rations.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 1. — Police Captain Pat Hackett, one of the oldest in the country, doubts that convict Allen knows anything about Holmes. Allen or John Caldwell, as he is known here, was an associate of negroes and very tough whites. He has quite a Tennessee record as a horse thief.

This will make the total bonded debt $747,350,700 and the whole national debt, exclusive of certificates and treasury notes, $1,128,189,820.25. The cash balance of $195,249,153 reported last month will be decreased by about $8,000,000. The deficit for July, the first month in the new fiscal year, will foot up about nine and a quarter millions of dollars.

TROOPS AT THE SCENE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A telegram was received at the war department Thursday from Gen. Coppinger, stating that he had crossed the Teton range with his command. The dispatch was forwarded by courier to Market Lake. The Teton range is 25 miles from Jackson's Hole.

We have been unable to ship up to the present time, owing to the large demand in the city, but now we propose to fill orders for picnics, and those who want the leading goods can get them by calling at the corner of Market and Front streets. I can furnish you with mineral waters, pints or quarts, just as you wish. Will pay special attention to picnics, and will take back goods that are not sold, though if it is a nice day you will not hardly order enough to supply the demand.

I have had nine years experience in this city and six years in Pennsylvania in the business, and you will find if you buy goods of me you will always find a sale for them. I make them so good that if you try one drink of pure pine apple you will want several more. And if you try the strawberry that was grown in Scioto county and the juice taken from them in Portsmouth, you will say "I never thought strawberry was so good before." The raspberry, fresh picked, made into sweet juice, put into bottles and sold by the dealers, is equally as fine. Apricot is an extra fine drink. It is a new drink, and is a favorite drink among the ladies, as well as among the gentlemen and children.

If you are going to have a picnic take some of the fruit along, and a hundred pounds of ice to keep it cold, and enjoy the day.

Originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

THE CAT AND THE KING.

BY STANLEY J. WEYMAN.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

It was in the spring of the year 1609 that at the King's instance I had a suite of apartments fitted up for him at the Arsenal, that he might visit me, whenever it pleased him, without putting my family to inconvenience; in another place will be found an account of the six thousand crowns a year which he was so obliging as to allow me for this purpose. He honored me by using these rooms, which consisted of a hall, a chamber, a wardrobe, and a closet, two or three times in the course of that year, availing himself of my attendants and cook; and the free opportunities of consulting me on the Great Undertaking, which this plan afforded, led me to hope that notwithstanding the envy of my detractors, he would continue to adopt it. That he did not do so, nor ever visited me after the close of that year, was due not so much to the lamentable event, soon to be related, which within a few months deprived France of her greatest sovereign, as to a strange matter that attended his last stay with me. I have since had cause to think that this did not receive at the time as much attention as it deserved; and have even imagined that had I groped a little deeper into the mystery I might have found a clue to the future as well as the past, and averted one more, and the last, danger from my beloved master. But Providence would not have it so; a slight indisposition under which I was suffering at the time rendered me less able, both in mind and body; the result being that Henry, who was always averse to the publication of these ominous episodes, and held that being known they bred the like in mischievous minds, had his way, the case ending in no more than the punishment of a careless rascal.

On the occasion of this last visit—the third, I think, that he paid me—the King, who had been staying at Chantilly, came to me from Lusarche, where he lay the intervening night. My coaches went to meet him at the gates a little before noon, but he did not immediately arrive, and being at leisure and having assured myself that the dinner of twelve covers, which he had directed to be ready, was in course of preparation, I went with my wife to inspect his rooms and satisfy myself that everything was in order.

They were in charge of La Trape, a man of address and intelligence, whom I have had cause to mention more than once in the course of these memoirs. He met me at the door and conducted us through the rooms with an air of satisfaction; nor could I find the slightest fault, until my wife, looking about her with a woman's eye for minute things, paused by the bed in the chamber, and directed my attention to something on the floor.

She stooped over it. "What is this?" she asked. "Has something been——"

"WHAT IS THIS?" SHE ASKED.

"Upset here?" I said, looking also. There was a little pool of white liquid on the floor beside the bed.

La Trape uttered an exclamation of annoyance, and explained that he had not seen it before, that it had not been there five minutes earlier; and that he did not know how it came to be there now.

"What is it?" I said, looking about for some pitcher that might have overflowed; but finding none. "Is it milk?"

"I don't know, your excellency," he answered. "But it shall be removed at once."

"See that it is," I said. "Are the boughs in the fire-place fresh?" For the weather was still warm and we had not lit a fire.

"Yes, your excellency; quite fresh."

"Well, see to that, and remove it," I said, pointing to the mess. "It looks ill."

And with that the matter passed from my mind; the more completely as I heard at that moment the sound of the King's approach, and went into the court-yard to receive him. He brought with him Roquelaure, de Vic, Erard the engineer, and some others, but none whom he did not know that I shou'd be glad to receive. He dined well, and after dinner amused himself with seeing the young men ride at the ring, and even rode a course himself with his usual skill; that being, if I remember rightly, the last occasion on which I ever saw him take a lance. Before supper he walked for a time in the hall, with Sillery, for whom he had sent; and after supper, pronouncing himself tired, he dismissed all, and retired with me to his chamber. Here we had some talk on a subject that I greatly dreaded—I mean his infatuation for Madame de Conde; but about 11 o'clock he yawned, and, after thanking me for a reception which he said was quite to his mind, he bade me go to bed.

I was half way to the door when he called me back. "Why, Grandmaster," he said, pointing to the little table by the head of the bed on which his night drinks stood, "you might be going to drown me. Do you expect me to drink all these in the night?"

"I think that there is only your posset, sire," I said, "and the lemon-water which you generally drink."

"And two or three other things?"

"Perhaps they have given your majesty some of the Arbois wine that you were good enough to——"

"Tut-tut!" he said, lifting the cover of one of the cups. "This is not wine. It may be a milk-posset."

"Yes, sire; very likely," I said drowsily.

"But it is not!" he answered, when he had smelled it. "It is plain milk! Come, my friend," he continued, looking drolly at me, "have you turned leech, or I babe in arms that you put such strong liquors before me? However, to show you that I have some childish tastes left, and am not so depraved as you have been trying to make me out for the last hour—I will drink your health in it. It would serve you right if I made you pledge me in the same liquor!"

The cup was at his lips when I sprang forward and, heedless of ceremony, caught his arm. "Pardon, sire!" I cried, in sudden agitation. "If that is milk, I gave no order that it should be placed here; and I know nothing of its origin. I beg that you will not drink it, until I have made some inquiry."

"They have all been tasted?" he asked, still holding the cup in his hand with the lid raised, but looking at it gravely.

"They should have been!" I answered. "But La Trape, whom I made answerable for that, is outside. I will go and question him. If you will wait, sire, a moment——"

"No," Henry said. "Have him here."

I gave the order to the pages who were waiting outside, and in a moment La Trape appeared, looking startled and uncomfortable. Naturally, his first glance was given to the King, who had taken his seat on the edge of the bed, but still held the cup in his hand. After asking the King's permission, I said: "What drinks did you place on the table, here, sirrah?"

He looked more uncomfortable at this, but he answered boldly enough that he had served a posset, some lemon water, and some milk.

"But orders were given only for the lemon-water and the posset," I said.

"True, your excellency," he answered. "But when I went to the pantry hatch, to see the under-butler carry up the tray, I found that the milk was on the tray; and I supposed that you had given another order."

"Possibly Madame de Sully," the King said, looking at me, "gave the order to add it?"

"She would not presume to do so, sire," I answered, sternly. "Nor do I in the least understand the matter. But at one thing we can easily arrive. You tasted all of these, man?"

La Trape said he had.

"You drank a quantity, a substantial quantity of each—according to the orders given to you?" I persisted.

"Yes, your excellency."

But I caught a guilty look in his eyes, and in a gust of rage I cried out that he lied. "The truth!" I thundered, in a terrible voice. "The truth, you villain; you did not taste all?"

"I did, your excellency; as God is above, I did!" he answered. But he had grown pale, and he looked at the King in a terrified way.

"You did?"

"Yes!"

Yet I did not believe him, and I was about to give him the lie again, when the King intervened. "Quite so," he said to La Trape, with a smile. "You drank, my good fellow, of the posset and the lemon water, and you tasted the milk, but you did not drink of it. Is not that the whole truth?"

"Yes, sire," he whimpered, breaking down. "But I—I gave some to a cat."

"And the cat is no worse?"

"No, sire."

"There, Grand Master," the King said, turning to me, "that is the truth, I think. What do you say to it?"

"That the rest is simple," I answered, grimly. "He did not drink it before; but he will drink it now, sire."

The King, sitting on the bed, laughed and looked at La Trape; as if his good-nature almost led him to interpose. But after a moment's hesitation he thought better of it, and handed me the cup. "Very well," he said; "he is your man. Have your way with him. After all, he should have drunk it."

"He shall drink it now, or be broken on the wheel!" I said. "Do you hear, you?" I continued, turning to him in a white heat of rage at the thought of his negligence, and the price it might have cost me. "Take it, and beware that you do not drop or spill it. For I swear that that shall not save you!"

He took the cup with a pale face, and hands that shook so much that he needed both to support the vessel. He hesitated, too, so long that, had I not possessed the best of reasons for believing in his fidelity, I should have suspected him of more than negligence. The shadow of his tall figure seemed to waver on the tapestry behind him; and with a little imagination I might have thought that the lights in the room had sunk. The soft whispering of the pages outside could be heard, and a stifled laugh; but inside there was not a sound. He carried the cup to his lips; then he lowered it again.

I took a step forward.

He recoiled a pace, his face ghastly. "Patience, excellency," he said, hoarsely. "I shall drink it. But I want to speak first."

"Speak!" the King answered.

"If there is death in it, I take God to witness that I know nothing, and knew nothing! There is some witch's work here—it is not the first time that I have come across this devil's milk to-day! But I take God to witness I know nothing! Now it is here I will drink it, and——"

He did not finish the sentence, but drawing a deep breath raised the cup to his lips. I saw the apple in his throat rise and fall with the effort he made to swallow, but he drank so slowly that it seemed to me that he would never drain the cup. Nor did he, for when he had swallowed, as far as I could judge from the tilting of the cup, about half of the milk, Henry rose suddenly and, seizing it, took it from him with his own hand.

"That will do," the King said. "Do you feel ill?"

La Trape drew a trembling hand across his brow, on which the sweat stood in beads; but instead of answering he remained silent, gazing fixedly before him. We waited and watched, and at length, when I should think three minutes had elapsed, he changed his position for one of greater ease, and I saw his face relax. The unnatural pallor faded, and the open lips closed. A minute later he spoke. "I feel nothing, sire," he said.

The King looked at me drolly. "Then take five minutes more," he said. "Go, and stare at Judith there, cutting off the head of Holofernes"—for that was the story of the tapestry—"and come when I call you."

La Trape went to the other end of the chamber. "Well," the King said, inviting me by a sign to sit down beside him, "is it a comedy or a tragedy, my friend? Or, tell me, what was it he meant when he said that about the other milk?"

I explained, the matter seeming so trivial now that I came to tell it—though it had doubtless contributed much to La Trape's fright—that I had to apologize.

"Still it is odd," the King said. "These drinks were not here, at that time, of course?"

"No, sire; they have been brought up within the hour."

"Well, your butler must explain it." And with that he raised his voice and called La Trape back; who came, looking red and sheepish.

An Operator Murdered.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A special from Potts Camp, Miss., says that Wednesday night J. A. Gatlin, a prominent local politician, anxious to get election news from Benton county, approached the telegraph office and asked Western Union operator Ed West, to take a message. West was busy making out his railroad reports, and did not respond at once. A dispute followed, and when West rose and opened the office door to take the telegram, Catlin entered, and drawing a pistol shot him in the head, killing him instantly. Catlin fled down the railroad. A posse is after him, and a lynching is probable.

WILL FIGHT.

Japan Draws the Line Against Further Subjection

To the Demands of Russia, France, Germany and Other Powers.

She Will Go to War Before She Will Yield the Advantage She Has in the Peninsula—What Washington Diplomats Are Saying About the Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The diplomatic corps in Washington is watching with especial interest at present the settlement of the question of the evacuation of Port Arthur by the Japanese, in view of the demand which Russia, France and Germany are reported to have made upon the Japanese to evacuate the entire Liao Tung peninsula without refrence to China's fulfillment of her part of the Shimonoseki treaty obligations. It is made quite clear at the Japanese legation here that Japan will not accede to this demand, if really made, without a vigorous protest.

"Japan," said an official of the legation, in discussing the contingency today. "will fight before she will yield the advantage she has in the peninsula without a full settlement of the indemnity awarded her for the surrender of the concession. It is too important a lever to let go of simply because it may suit Russia's purposes to ask it. It is our understanding here that the evacuation is to depend upon the payment of the indemnity. Japan certainly, regarded the matter in that light when the treaty was amended at the instance of the European powers. It may be claimed that the question is not any longer one between China and Japan, but rather one between Japan and the European countries interested in the settlement, but this position is not tenable. It is China to which Japan must look for the money she is to receive and it is Chinese territory that is involved in the controversy; and if it is a matter of keeping faith with the European powers, let them make good the indemnity if they do not want Japan to continue at Port Arthur."

The representatives here of the mikado's government are evidently not impressed with the belief that France and Germany are so much concerned over this settlement as has been represented. Diplomates generally also find it hard to realize that Russia should be so much in earnest in pressing Japan to the wall in these matters as she is represented to be. They say that having gained every advantage sought, Russia would naturally be expected now to press her claims in a way not to further wound the feelings of the Japanese.

"Russia," said a member of the diplomatic corps, "has succeeded in preventing Japan's getting any foothold whatever on the Asiatic continent, and it is evident from recent accounts that the European powers are reaping the diplomatic harvest in Corea to which Japan is entitled. It has always been Russia's policy to treat a conquered people so leniently as to soon Russianize them. Why she should not treat Japan as liberally and make the Pacific island her actual, as she is her natural, ally, passes my comprehension."

A QUARANTINE

Established Against Cattle and Swine Imported by Sea.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Ambassador Runyon, in Berlin, announces the establishment by the bundesrath of an obligatory quarantine of ruminating animals and swine imported by sea in order to prevent the introduction of Texas fever, pulmonary consumption, mange, sheep pox, swine pest, swine plague, foot and mouth diseases, etc. The duration of quarantine is fixed at four weeks, and in addition a period of observation of five months at destination. Imperial chancellor, however, is empowered to reduce the time of quarantine as a special concession to ten days in the case of animals from countries where the above mentioned diseases do not at the time exist and in such cases there will be observation period, as the pest quarantine is intended only for greater security in the case of animals imported from countries where the health of cattle is considered satisfactory. These quarantine regulations will go into effect October 1 next. In answer to inquiry Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry of the agricultural department stated that these quarantine regulations would seem to have no particular interest for American shippers, as the importation into Germany of cattle from this country was actually prohibited altogether on the pretense of the presence of contagious diseases among our cattle. The only object apparently in the regulations, which, as the dispatch quoted proves are very elastic, seems to afford the opportunity for the importation of cattle from other countries than the United States, unless indeed the German government proposes to relieve this country after October 1 from the prohibitive decree now in force.

ORGANIZED BANDITS

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 2.—Six organized bands of robbers armed with Remington rifles have for a long time harassed the district of Eriwanin Trans-Caucasia. These bands recently united under the command of a notorious leader, Aadul Heyder Khan, and attacked and burned a number of isolated farm houses. Finally, becoming bolder, the robbers attacked in broad daylight several villages, which they captured and burned. All the men in the villages and all the farm houses who were unable to escape were shot to death while the women and children were carried off by the bandits. The police were unable to stop these outrages and a force of two hundred cossacks was sent to punish the robbers. On the night of July 25 the cossacks encountered the bandits at Nachitschewan. After a sharp fight the bandits who are now armed with modern magazine rifles, repulsed the cossacks. Reinforcements to the number of three hundred men have been sent to assist the defeated cossacks and the troops are now billeted throughout the Harried districts.

Today's Races.

FAIR GROUNDS, 3 O'CLOCK—The attendance at the races this afternoon was very small. The falling off over the attendance of yesterday was hard to understand. Instead of there being a crush in the grand stand there was less than two hundred people around the course. Only a few carriages were lined up along the track. The attendance at the grounds was also very small. The fakirs did not make an attempt to open at all in the forenoon. All the noise and snakes they could bring out on the outside even failed to attract the few strollers through the grounds. After a few such futile attempts to get a crowd they closed up in disgust and began packing up their traps preparatory to the grand rush to get away this evening. The score card men were unable to dispose of but a few of their cards, the crowd being an entirely different one from yesterday.

THE 2:26 TROT.

Much local interest was centered in this race from the very first. Five Ply, the old campaigner and the only race horse worthy of note we have in the city, was a great favorite. There were six entries in the race. Hazette, a handsome little bay, from Butler county was considered one of the best. Gentle Annie had the pole. It was a hard start. Five Ply worried somewhat and warmed up a little too freely. Lemon, her driver saved her as much as possible. While the race was starting one of the fellows selling score sheets became very abusive and was frequently hissed, for his insults to the crowd. He finally became so loud that he was arrested and taken off the grounds much to the satisfaction of everybody.

First Heat, 2:26 Trot—The start was a good one, Gentle Annie and Five Ply going off together. The first quarter was held by Gentle Annie with ease. Hazette broke on the start, and went away behind. She was not able to make up, and got the flag on the home stretch. The finish of the first half put Five Ply about a length behind Gentle Annie. He gained on the three quarter, but Belgia came out with a wonderful burst of speed, and soon came second ahead of Five Ply. It was a close finish, and race was almost won by Belgia. The finish was Gentle Annie, Belgia, Five Ply and Nuttalite. Hazette distanced. Time, 2:25¼.

Second Heat, 2:26 Trot—Five Ply came back very fresh. The start was slow. Gentle Annie led on the quarter, pushed right well by old Five Ply. How the old fellow did work. Every movement was perfection. Lemon knew his horse and pushed him to the limit. Belgia broke and cut up in bad shape during the whole heat, coming in third on the first half, but falling to fourth in the last half. Five Ply's work won the admiration of all. He never made a break in the whole run. In the three quarter stretch he went up, and it looked as though he might yet be able to take first. Down the home stretch he kept up his even rate, but Gentle Annie was too fast for him, and he had to be content with second. It was his best work. Nutallite finished third and Belgia fourth. Time, 2:25¼.

Third Heat, 2:26 Trot—Made a beautiful start. Five Ply broke on first quarter and was left away behind. He then came to himself on the last half, and how he did work. Nuttalite had the lead easily enough, and on the three-quarter stretch it was neck and neck with Five Ply and Gentle Annie. On the last quarter, just on the home stretch and almost on the wire, Five Ply broke again. It cost him second place. Time 2:26, was much slower than anticipated. Nuttalite got first, Gentle Annie second, Five Ply third, and Belgia fourth.

Fourth Heat, 2:26 Trot—Plenty of surprises in this heat. Five Ply broke again on the start; then Nutallite; Five Ply came back presently, and then developed a race for second against Belgia. Latter took second, Five Ply being half a length behind. Gentle Annie won the heat and gets the race. Nutalite only makes fourth. Time 2:27.

THE 2:40 TROT.

First heat, 2:40 trot—Four starters. J. W. and Bondholder were drawn, the latter not being in good condition. Dadmar had the pole. He belonged to the Sunset stock farm, and is hardly up to the standard of the rest of their string of goers. Dadmar, the inside horse, had the start. Dakota came second. He lost, however, and gave away for Ashtabula, who did splendid work.

Ettie V. broke in the go and continued to go up on the whole heat. Ashtabula came in on the first half second, but on the three-quarter stretch went up in the air. He soon recovered, being an easy second, the last quarter, came up very slow. Dadmar finished third. There was much surprise when the time was announced as 2:28¼.

Second heat, 2:40 trot.—There were three starters. Very slow; repetition of first heat. Dakota had it, an easy winner. Scattered remarks on first quarter, and never bunched. Dakota two first. Ashtabula second, and Dadmar third. Time 2:31.

Third Heat, 2:40 trot—Dakota takes another, the third heat and wins the race. Unequal contest. Time 2:31, same as second heat. Ashtabula takes second money; was hotly chased on this heat for second place by Dadmar.

THE 2:16 PACE.

First Heat—There were four starters, with heavy betting between admirers of Tom Tipton and Ivorene. Tipton was pole horse. The start put Ivorene off her feet and she came in behind on both halves. Tipton held the lead, with Sallie Bronston a close second. Both went off their feet when almost to the wire. Finish slow. Time, 2:19 ¾. Ivorene finished fourth. Lots of money for the sure thing betters.

Second Heat—It was the most interesting of the afternoon. Faith in Ivorene held out with the betters on account of her good showing yesterday. Much time was taken up before the start. Tipton had start again and held out the entire heat. Ivorene gained inch by inch on him and kept second place. Bronson came in third and tried hard for second. Drivers of Ivorene and Tipton both plied whip heavily. Tipton won heat by half length. Time 2:17 3 4 the fastest yet made on track this year.

Third heat—Tom Tipton takes third heat in 2:16 pace and wins race. Time 2:18. Ivorene second.

THE RUNNING RACE.

Summary running mile dash, purse $100, as follows: Anfait, 4; Darius, 1; Bob Holloway, 3; King Howard, 2. Time, 148 1-2. Won by Darius.

Yesterday's Races.

A conservative estimate of the attendance at the race track at yesterday's races at the fair grounds would make in the neighborhood of 8,000. It was one of the largest day's attendance at the fair for several years. The races were all very exciting and the crowd held out until late in the evening when the last race was finished. It was after seven o'clock before the judges came down out of the stand. Every race on the program for the day was finished. Four heats in the 2:18 trot and the race was won by Eura with Frankie B second. Frankie B continued to break badly and this perhaps lost her the race.

The complete summary of the 2.18 trot was:

Eura, J. S. Osborne, Star City	2	1	1	1
Frankie B.	1	2	2	2
Blancless	3	3	3	4
Emma Wilkes	4	4	4	3

Time—2:18; 2:21; 2:20½; 2:22

THE 2:30 PACE.

In the 2:30 pace there were only four starters. Peggy Brandon, much to the surprise of all, took the first heat. After that she behaved very ugly and finished fourth in the other three heats. Etta V., driven by James Gillen, was a favorite, being looked upon as a home horse. Dan B, or Beaver Dam, as his owner, the Hon. John W. Barger, of Pike, delights to call him, was also a favorite. His Clydesdale blood was not equal to the occasion, however, and the best he could do was to come in third in the three last heats. Nona A. took the three last heats straight and won the race. The summary was:

Nona A.	2	1	1	1
Peggy Brandon	1	4	4	4
Etta V.	3	2	2	2
Dan B.	4	3	3	3

Time—2:21¼; 2:27½; 2:28; 2:29.

THE 2:30 TROT.

The 2:30 trot had only three starters, and it was the intention not to start the race, but at the last moment it was decided to let it go. It was an easy race for Happiness in three straight heats. The time was very slow and but little interest was shown in the race. The summary was:

Happiness	1	1	1
Black Count	2	3	2
Du Wain	3	2	3

Time—2:36; 2:35; 2:35.

THE THREE QUARTER MILE DASH.

The three-quarter mile running race was a very exciting event. There were four starters and the finish was a hard one. Darius got it. The summary.

FRIGHTFUL.

Silas Allen Falls Down an Embankment 35 Feet High.

A Premature Explosion Threw a Piece of Rock Which Struck Him—Picked Up Unconscious and Probably Fatally Injured, Although He Is Still Alive.

News of a frightful accident at Scioto ville yesterday afternoon was received here this morning. The victim, who miraculously escaped instant death, received injuries which will doubtless prove fatal. Silas Allen, with other men, was engaged in blasting on the hill below the Scioto Fire Brick works, and near the N. & W. depot. The land belongs to the Brick works, and the men were preparing to get at the clay. Mr. Allen had just finished drilling a hole in the rock and had poured the explosive in. He started to run away from the place and slipped down the rather steep bank to the edge. Here the bank stands up perpendicularly probably 35 or 40 feet. There was nothing to stay his descent, and he slid over and down the stone wall to the ditch below. The terrified workmen ran to his assistance and Dr. Peachnor was summoned. He found the unfortunate man unconscious and badly bruised up.

Some spectators say that the charge had exploded in the hole, and a piece of the rock struck Allen, knocking him over the embankment, while others are of the opinion that he was attempting to escape before it exploded.

Allen is about forty years of age, has a wife and children, and was a hard working, honest and respected citizen. At last reports he was alive, but there were no hopes of recovery.

"The Telegram" was the play at the Grand last evening, and the production compared favorably with plays of a higher price. The company showed off to good advantage. As usual Jessie Mae and O. W. Hall took the honors. The specialties introduced were bright, novel and entertaining. Tonight, "Satin's Football," a romantic comedy drama, with a fine plot and brilliant comedy. O. W. Hall and Jessie Mae Hall will introduce an up to date double tragedy, and the entertainment will doubtless be as satisfactory as any yet given by this company. One remarkable feature is the temperature of the house, the auditorium being cool and pleasant.

During all of next week the superintendent of branch agencies for the Dayton Sanitarium and Medicine Case company will be at the leading hotel for the purpose of exhibiting and explaining free of charge, their new Household Medicine case, containing medicine for all family ills, together with a valuable treatise explaining the symptoms of all diseases, their causes, and the mode of successfully treating them without the necessity of calling in a physician. You may avoid the expense of so doing, as our long experience has proven beyond a doubt that the people can handle cases of sickness quite successfully with our medicines at hand. This is a matter of personal interest to everybody. We all get sick sometimes.

The Company wishes to establish a local agency here and their representative will employ some suitable person to look after their business interests in this locality. Intelligent young men and women may find an easy way to make money during the summer months by selling these medicine cases, which are universally needed in every household. See daily papers of next week. Everybody welcome to call and investigate the system thoroughly.
